

Christmas discounts for Astaro UTM upgrades

Astaro starts "More than a firewall" promotion for registered resellers

London and Karlsruhe (Germany), 20th November 2006 - Astaro Corporation (www.astaro.co.uk), a leader in providing unified threat management security solutions, today announced a festive channel deal awarding discounted license upgrades for existing customers. During November and December, registered Astaro resellers are entitled to an extra 800 Euro discount when selling additional subscriptions to existing Astaro Security Gateway customers with base licenses activated before 1st November 2006. Astaro's "More than a firewall" promotion is available for new email or web security subscription contracts that run for a minimum of three years.

Astaro's promotional deal is poised to reward new Email Security Subscription and Web Security Subscription deals and does not apply for subscription renewals. Detailed information is available when contacting Astaro's exclusive distributors Northamber and Softek. This promotion will end on 28 December 2006.

"This promotion provides an effective way for us to reward our loyal UK resellers at the end of another successful year," explains Shameem Ibrahim, sales director, UK and Ireland. "Earning the discount couldn't be simpler, all they have to do is sell an additional license key to their existing customers."

Astaro's high-speed UTM hardware appliances and software applications protect over 30,000 corporate networks around the globe. Entry-level versions are available with network security via firewall, IPS and VPN applications plus security management. Users can also subscribe to Email Security, which includes spam filtering and protection from viruses and phishing attacks. A Web Security subscription is also available with URL filtering, virus and spyware scanning.
